COMMENT OF THE DAY

Good Speech

THE tone of Mr. Foster Dulles' speech before the UN General Assembly yesterday went very much closer to the sentiments of the majority of the free world than some of his recent utterances. It was both conciliatory and constructive without carrying with it the odious label of appeasement. It contained a direct invitation to Russia to meet the Western powers half-way in the monumental task of composing international differences, and this was couched in phraseology to which even Mr. Vyshinsky could not object without being utterly foolish. Whether or not the temper of Mr. Dulles' speech will succeed in setting a new level of constructive debating in the General Assembly remains to be seen. Mr. Vyshinsky's first reactions were non-committal and he has still to address the delegates. But he could hardly fail to be impressed by two of Mr. Dulles' points. The first was the assurance that the United States does not seek to export revolution and incite others to violence—a statement of policy which may be taken to represent a reversal of the theory of "liberation" concerning the Soviet-occupied countries of Eastern Europe. The second referred to international disarmament. This was quite clearly an invitation to Mr. Vyshinsky to come forward with any new proposals he may have, and thus allow the United Nations to explore anew the possibilities of breaking the deadlock on this issue.

DEALING with other international controversies—the future of Germany, the Austrian peace treaty and the Korean problem—Mr. Dulles stated the case of the Western world firmly but without the faintest suggestion of propounding an ultimatum. His recognition of the fears and desires of the Russian people was appropriate, helping to put the whole problem of international relations in Europe in proper perspective. It was a delicate touch which may well leave a deeper impression on the minds of the Soviet rulers than any high-sounding rhetoric. Even though Mr. Dulles considered it necessary to express some doubts about the sincerity of the Communists in the question of reaching a settlement in Korea, he succeeded in maintaining a balanced point of view. He appealed, not denounced, re-emphasising the realities of a situation which have to be faced by the Communists if the Korean problem is to be satisfactorily solved. All in all Mr. Dulles delivered a good speech which will be appreciated and applauded by all people who have a sincere desire to see the world's problems settled through the machinery of amicable negotiations.

GALES WILL BUFFET COLONY

60 mph Gust At Waglan STORM HAS 100 MILE RADIUS

Hongkong is going to receive a buffeting from Typhoon Susan after all. Winds of gale force are expected to be felt in the harbour and other parts of the Colony this afternoon and this evening. A 50 knots gust was registered at Waglan during the morning.

It is still not possible to determine whether the full brunt of the typhoon will be felt here. This morning the Royal Observatory said the centre of the typhoon was expected to pass within 60 miles south of Hongkong, and it was officially estimated that the radius of the disturbances was about 100 miles.

At noon the Royal Observatory issued the following brief statement:

"There is no further information about Typhoon Susan available. The typhoon appears to be advancing very slowly on the same track."

At the same time the following official weather forecast was issued:

"Gale force north or northeast winds, gusting to over 50 knots, are expected. Cloudy with almost continual rain, heavy at times."

The possibility of the Star ferries either curtailing and stopping services later today was admitted by a company official this morning.

He said that owing to probable deteriorating conditions in the harbour, it would be advisable and might be necessary to curtail ferry services later today, and even stop them completely.

He added that every endeavour would be made to let the public know beforehand.

The Star ferry had hoisted no warning flags up to 12.30 p.m.

The ss Faisan, one of the two river steamers of the Hongkong and Macao Shipping Pool Line now in service, failed to return to Hongkong from Macao early this morning because of the weather. The other vessel, the ss Takshing, which cancelled her sailing to the Portuguese colony last night, took shelter off Stonecutters Island. Her departure tonight for Macao will depend on weather conditions, a Pool official said.

City's Freedom For Monty

During his recent visit to Canada, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery was made a freeman of the City of Toronto, and this picture shows "Monty" shaking hands with Capt. F. L. Statham, leader of the Welsh Guards band, which was then in Toronto, after having the Freedom of the City conferred on him.

Chinese Nationalists Refuse To Evacuate Troops From Burma

Bangkok, Sept. 17.

A flare-up of hostilities between Burmese and Chinese Nationalist troops in Burma appeared to be imminent today following the break-down of the four-Power Bangkok talks on the proposed evacuation of an estimated 12,000 Chinese guerrillas.

The Burmese Ambassador, U Pe Kin, told the United Press, "Military operations will be intensified. Burma cannot countenance continued violations of her territorial integrity."

The Ambassador made the statement shortly after the Nationalist Chinese delegate had rejected a Burmese ultimatum demanding the withdrawal of at least 5,000 Chinese troops within 35 days after signing an agreement.

The Burmese delegates walked out of the four-month-old talks between Nationalist China, Thailand, the United States and Burma when the Chinese delegate said that the Chinese Nationalist Government was "not in a position to accept" Burma's proposal.

Yesterday, the Burmese Ambassador shattered official silence cloaking United Nations Commission negotiations since May 22 by accusing the Nationalists of insincerity and of "trying to create another Pannunjun."

The Burmese delegation made an ultimatum to the Chinese after U Pe Kin's return from Rangoon where he had conferred over with the Premier, U Nu.

The Burmese delegation was planning to return to Rangoon on Saturday, the Ambassador said.

The walk-out occurred following the Burmese declaration that "in view of the Chinese representative's failure to accept the proposals made, which are simple and not difficult to implement, the Burmese representative has no alternative but to withdraw from the talks."

The Burmese delegation had demanded that the Chinese Nationalists agree:

1. To accept in principle that all Chinese troops in Burmese territory will be withdrawn.
2. That not less than 5,000 Chinese troops must evacuate Burma within 35 days of signing an agreement.
3. The Burmese demand had given the Chinese Nationalists until September 23 to reply.
4. The Burmese Ambassador said that the withdrawal of the Nationalist troops was a precondition for the resumption of talks.

King Case: Counsel Accuses Witness Of Haranguing

What Counsel for the Defence described as a harangue was made by Mr M. W. H. Seymour, a Director of Messrs G. Falconer and Co., Ltd., of Union Building, in the course of his cross-examination by Mr M. A. da Silva at Central this morning, when hearing of the case against James Joseph Osbourne King, merchant, of 20 Braga Circuit, on a charge of alleged fraudulent conversion, continued before Mr Poon Yan-hoi.

When Mr Silva asked Mr Seymour if he would look up his payments accounts and his billing account with Jack Arcus, Mr Seymour declared: "A peculiarity of this case is that Mr King, having had or at any rate seen the document Exhibit SSSS in April or thereabouts, 1950, with the remarks on, and having signed the balance sheet on March 14, 1951, as a Director and on March 16, 1951, had come to the Company meeting and approved the balance sheet as a shareholder should now, in 1953, when he is subject to a Police Prosecution, try to throw dirt at me."

King, a shareholder of Falconer's, is alleged to have taken the sum of $6,305.94 for the use of his wife from the Company on November 17, 1950, while a Director of George Falconer and Co., Ltd.

The Hon. Leo d'Almada, QC (who was not in Court today) and Mr A. J. Clifford are both for the Prosecution, instructed by Hastings and Company, Mr M. A. da Silva is for the Defence.

Mr Silva, continuing his cross-examination of Mr Seymour this morning, asked further questions concerning a transaction over a Hamilton diamond watch stated to be worth US$900. Witness agreed with Mr Silva that at the time exchange rate of HK$6.43 plus 40 per cent, the sum would amount to HK$8,101.50.

Mr Silva: Whenever anything is sent out on consignment or supply from Ipekjdian Brothers to Falconer's, a supply note is sent with the articles.

Witness: At the present day a supply note is not sent. A consignment note is sent but I think that at that time that was not in existence.

They use a supply note instead?—No. If anything was sent at the time there would be a record at Ipekjdian's, and if goods were sold Falconer's would be billed.

CONSIGNMENT SYSTEM
Let us take the system of a consignment note. On that note the charge or value of the article is to be noted, that right?—Yes, on a consignment note.

That was necessary, especially in regard to goods on consignment, so that Falconer's would know what price to charge over and above Ipekjdian's charge to them?—That would be left to the manager.

What I said was that the price value on the consignment note is necessary so that Falconer's manager would know what to charge for the article?—Yes.

If Ipekjdian charged Falconer's say $3, Falconer's would be able to sell at $5 plus?—You are going into business now. If the manager of Falconer's thought the article was only worth $5 and he could only sell it for $5, he was perfectly at liberty to sell at $5 or at $5 plus. It was at his discretion.

When a consignment note and article is received, is it then entered by Falconer's into what is known as a consignment stock card?—It would be today. "I don't know what happened in 1950" when Mr King was manager of Falconer's.

WIFE IN CHARGE
And the person in charge of the stock card today is Miss Singian?—Miss Singian is not in charge of the stock card. They are kept by the Secretary of the Company, who is my wife.

I should have said the consignment stock card is kept by Miss Singian.—Yes.

And upon sale by Falconer's of the article he would be reported to Ipekjdian, and they would bill for the $5. In other words, any plus would be kept by Falconer's. If they made 50 cents over they would be entitled to keep it?—Yes.

I suggest to you, Mr Seymour, that you are aware that the item marked as US$900—the Hamilton diamond watch—was the only one of these articles sold by Falconer's. So far as I am aware there was none of this jewellery sold and it was returned to Jack Arcus, and returned without my knowledge.

New W. Berlin Police Force

Berlin, Sept. 17.
West Berlin Police today announced the formation of a crack 3,000-man motorised special police force to crush Communist border riots and combat Communist kidnap attempts.

The force, known as the "Alert Police," lives in barracks, receives special training and is similar to the Canadian Royal Mounted Police.

Announcement of fulfilment of plans to form the crack unit was made after Western Police today drove off at gunpoint a Communist force that crossed the border into the West in an apparent effort to kidnap an anti-Communist writer.

The kidnapers, five to eight of them, retreated back across the border when West Berlin Police fired a warning shot into the air.

The Communists sneaked up under cover of darkness on the border-home of Otto Ranke, an anti-Communist writer.

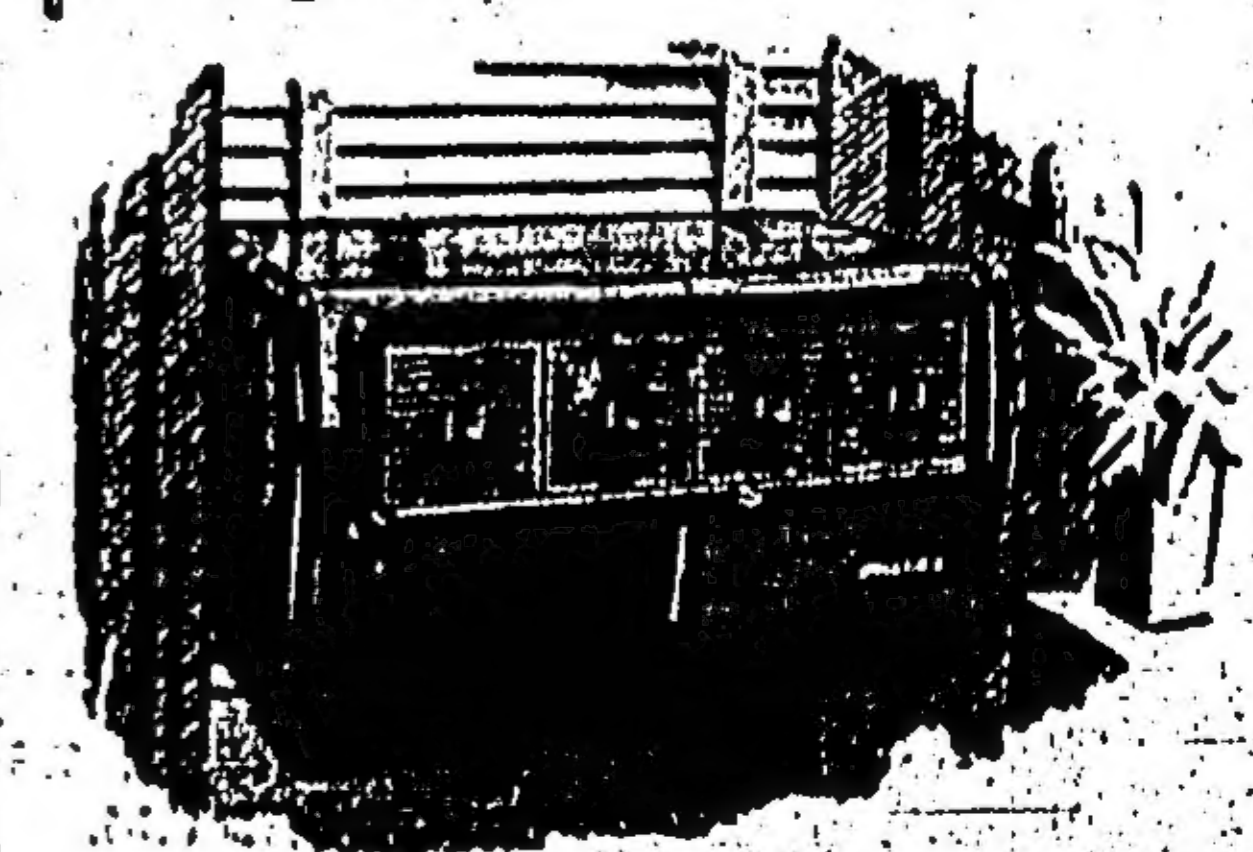

The Alert Police has been under organisation for months.

Erich Duenning, Commander of West Berlin's uniformed Police, said today that the organisation of the force had been completed and the last of the unit's 3,000 men recruited and trained.

The special force is fully motorised, has its own radio station and, as its name implies, can be alerted at a moment's notice to crush Communist-inspired disorders.

British banks are usually open to the general public for only five hours a day. But for the next 10 days a handful of multi-lingual bank clerks will be available to the customers for 13 hours of every 24.

They have been hand-picked by their companies to staff the temporary banking branch offices at the British Radio Show in London's fabulous Earls Court.

Their job is to see that buying is made easy for visiting business men.

But they are only a minute part of the huge organisation whose job it is to tempt overseas buyers to linger beside the gigantic annual showwindow on Britain's youngest and most progressive industries.

And this year—despite a lightning strike by electricians which meant a dim-out opening for the show—Britain is going all-out to show visitors how she leads the rest of the world in the young science of electronics.

TV'S YEAR

Naturally Britain hasn't produced everything she has up her sleeve. Much is still under the security blanket. But what she does have ready to show occupies two floors of the mammoth exhibition hall and is breathtaking in range and diversity.

Everything that the ingenuity of British electrical engineers can devise—and security permits—is there, from pocket-size portable radios to massive electronic brains, equally useful in war or peace.

This year the humble radio has taken a back seat. It is tomorrow's war and throughout which the ordinary radio is surpassed by a 20th Century miracle and television just a name. It is the exhibition organised by our International famous radio firm in which blind operators will sure, sensitive fingers are assembling receivers.

SECRET PARED

Vietminh Dumps Attacked

Hanoi, Sept. 17. — French Beaufort and B-12 bombers today pounded the Viet over 50 sorties today against Vietnamese supply dumps and troop concentrations north of Hanoi along Colonial Road No. 1 between Hanoi and Langson, and in the Phum Ho Van area about 43 miles south of Hanoi in the west Red River delta.

These targets have been subjected to concentrated French and Vietnamese attacks for several weeks. French and Vietnamese troops were also reported to be intensely active inside the Red River delta.

Near Bulchu, a Vietnam light battalion caught the Vietnamese unawares in their own special brand of jungle warfare, and killed 12 in an ambush besides capturing a considerable amount of equipment.

French and Vietnam troops were also engaged on a cleaning-up operation in the chalk cliffs area near Cho Chai, some 20 miles south of Hanoi.

The operation has been in progress for several days, and no figures of casualties have been released.

The French army headquarters also reported today

throughout the exhibition. They can discover that the thunder of a cavalry charge is reproduced by hammering coconut shells on a blanketed table that gravel in a moving metal drum represents the armor of the rider's sea scapes; the dramatic thunder for ghost stories is produced by vibrating a large thin sheet of metal.

The armed services have staged some of the most attractive exhibits. On the Airplane stand the visitor who has never experienced anything more exciting than an annual trip to the seaside can thrill to the sensation of the brigade commander in Korea.

Standing beside a large model of a section of Korean battlefield ground he can pick up one of several telephones and listen to the crackling interchange of information and orders as company commanders move their men forward and the tanks come rumbling up in support.

The visitor has gone all-out to show how the electronic experts have made life easier for friendly pilots—and harder the fliers of would-be aggressors.

Peking And The U.N.

London, Sept. 17.
The Daily Herald stated today that Britain must strongly oppose Communist China being "kept on probation indefinitely" as far as membership to the United Nations General Assembly is concerned.

The Labour newspaper said that on the immediate question of whether China should be allowed to appear at the present session to state her case on the composition of the Korean political conference, British answer should be "certainly."

The paper said there would never be a settled world "where the rulers of 470 million Chinese are shunned by the United Nations.

"The indefinite exclusion China would be not only unwise, but a danger to peace," the Daily Herald declared. Reuter.

DECISIVE DEFEATS FOR SOUTH AFRICA IN ASSEMBLY

Apartheid Will Be Placed On Agenda

New York, Sept. 17.
South Africa suffered two decisive defeats in voting in the United Nations General Assembly on issues connected with the Malan Government's Apartheid policy.

The full General Assembly refused to accept the South African argument that it lacks competence to take up the question, which South Africa regards as purely a domestic matter.

South Africa asked the General Assembly to refrain from debating the treatment of people of Indian origin in the Union of South Africa and from accepting any resolutions or recommendations of the Commission, which studied the policy of Apartheid followed by the South African Government.

The South African delegate, Mr. G. P. Jooste, contended in the Assembly, as he had on past occasions in other United Nations meetings, that from the "strictly legal point of view" the United Nations lacked competence to deal with these maters. The Steering Committee had yesterday recommended inclusion on the agenda of the treatment of Indians question and the Apartheid question.

Voting first regarding the treatment of Indians question the Assembly decided by 45 votes to abstain on the first question with 10 abstentions to place it on the agenda.

Later, the Assembly voted to place the question of the South African Government's policy of Apartheid on the agenda. The South African protest was rejected by 40 to seven, with

SUPPORT FOR ADMISSION OF JAPAN TO G.A.T.T. POSSIBILITY AT GENEVA

Geneva, Sept. 17.

The eighth session of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade reopened here today with a considerable number of the 33-member countries expected to support the United States' demand to bring Japan within the agreement.

The United States contends that keeping Japan out of the agreement is tantamount to driving her into the arms of the Soviet Union as a trading outlet.

All GATT meetings are held in private and the session is expected to last five or six weeks.

At today's meeting the chairman, Mr. Johan Melander, Norway's Director of Commercial Policy, said:

"It is not enough that countries follow the trade and foreign exchange policies of the GATT and International Monetary Fund agreement. They must also pursue financial and monetary policies which are neither inflationary nor deflationary and they should consider this as important as abolishing quantitative restrictions and other restrictive trade and exchange practices."

Mr. Peter Thornycroft, President of the Board of Trade, and the heads of other delegations, including Mr. Samuel Waugh, United States Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, and Mr. Clarence Howe, Canadian Minister of Commerce, will make policy speeches.

BRITISH REQUEST Britain is expected to ask for permission to raise protective tariffs levied on a range of goods, mainly agricultural produce, she buys outside the Commonwealth, and for the extension for another year or more of the GATT tariff concessions already negotiated, due to expire at the end of this year.

Opposition is expected to the U.S. suggestion that Japan become an associate member of GATT, enjoying and granting full GATT tariff benefits, without first carrying out the tariff negotiations necessary under the General Agreement's constitution.

Britain, Australia, South Africa and France, and perhaps Holland, are opposed to this and should Japan gain associate membership, would not grant Japanese goods any GATT tariff concessions.

The U.S., however, is anxious to cut her dollar commitments in Japan, and to let Japan expand her world trade.—China Mail Special.

Germany's Exclusion "Treason"

Strasbourg, Sept. 17.

Former Belgian Premier Paul Henri Spaak tonight told a packed Assembly session of the 16-nation Council of Europe it would be "treason" to oppose the inclusion of Germany in Western unity.

Opening the Assembly's first debate on East-West tension, the veteran European statesman insisted: "There are still people who are hesitating."

"They say Germany is too strong to be a member of a European Community."

M. Spaak outlined an eight-point foreign policy plan for Europe.

This includes a demilitarized zone on both sides of the Iron Curtain, a security treaty between Britain, Russia, the United States and the projected European Community, and a four-power conference for discussion of Germany and Austria.

The unity of the Western world must be maintained and within it a united Europe which would be mistress of its own destiny, he declared.—Reuter.

BULK BUYING OF MEAT MAY BE TERMINATED

Melbourne, Sept. 17.

Almost alone among Australia's primary producers, meat raising and marketing circles are not alarmed at the prospect of a switch from Government-to-Government trading to private dealing.

They feel that the provisions of the 15-year meat agreement, under which Britain has undertaken to absorb all Australia's surplus beef, veal, mutton and lamb until 1967, will be sufficient safeguard, although the clauses governing the end of bulk buying do not mention the basis for calculating the price for trader-to-trader deals.

The clause promises only a floor price—which could be less than the cost of production—but does mention that it should be satisfactory to the producer.

Australia's two big agricultural and pastoral bodies, the Wheat and Wool Growers' Federation and the Graziers' Federal Council, are now deciding whether they should be represented at talks in England, probably in September or October, suggested by the National Farmers' Union of England and Wales. The union, in cables to Australia, issued a warning that a return to private trading was much nearer than previously.

Australian Meat Board spokesman, however, emphasized that there would be "at least six months' spade-work" to follow any reasonably early announcement that British meat would be de-rationalized.

Free markets, the spokesman said, are rarely as attractive as they currently offered by Russia, which is seeking substantial amounts of Australian meat and butter. There seems no likelihood that Russian interest in meat and butter will prove any more stable than her interest in wool which had, in fact, only an unsettling effect on the market.

It has been suggested that the meat and butter which Russia is now seeking is mainly to counter Western gift-food schemes in Germany.

COSTS TOO HIGH Australia's other free meat markets have disappointed Commerce Department officials who stress that production costs must be slashed. If Australia is to compete outside the boundaries of the Government-to-Government agreement, Russian interest has also drawn attention to the plight of the Australian export butter market where any change from bulk buying would have serious repercussions.

The only big purchaser is Britain under a contract which expires in 1955 and by which Australia is at present losing elevenpence (11d.) a lb.

The latest report from the Daily Industry Investigation Committee issued a warning that the end of bulk buying would probably bring a price drop. The Australian Dairy Produce Board knows of no immediate move to abandon bulk buying.

Marketing authorities see no great future in free sales, despite the sudden Russian interest. High production costs bar Australian butter from most world markets and the investigation committee has given a warning against any expansion of the dairying industry.

Apart from meat, almost all sections of Australia's rural industries have already declared themselves in favour of bulk buying as a necessary marketing safeguard.

Other meat industry spokesmen were also doubtful whether they would buy on a trader-to-trader basis.

Survival Of Freedom In Asia Up To Youth, Says Dulles

New York, Sept. 17.

Mr. John Foster Dulles, United States Secretary of State, told a dinner in honour of Crown Prince Akihito of Japan tonight: "The youth of Asia will largely determine whether freedom will survive or be ground beneath the tyrant's heel."

Mr. Dulles told a gathering of 500 at the Japan Society in honour of the Crown Prince that the Japanese people faced a "unique opportunity to display their greatness because the opportunities now offered are unique."

Speaking directly to Prince Akihito, he said: "The future of the world will in large part be determined in Asia by your generation and measurably by those whose allegiance you will come to command as Emperor."

"We will do what lies within our power to help ensure that your youth have a legacy which will help them to assure your country's continued constructive role in the community of free nations. But much depends upon the Japanese themselves."

He was speaking with "open and hopeful heart" as a man from the West to a young man from the East.

"Asia has a noble heritage. It has been fashioned out of the artistic achievement and spiritual insight of thousands of years of human experience. But those who inherited that culture are profoundly disturbed by the impact of the modern industrialized society. . . . It is the youth of the Asian lands who must seek stable adjustment between the old and the new."

The legacy for Japan's youth which we trust, also include a stable and effective Government dedicated to maintaining the security and serving the best interests of all her people.

VIGILANCE NEEDED "A Japanese post-war Government responsive to the will of the people has already been established. But, as I said recently in speaking to a purely American audience, that situation can be relied upon automatically to preserve the liberties of the people."

In the last analysis the liberties of a people depend on the vigilance of the people. On the basis of personal observation of the Japanese people are likely to remain vigilant in guarding their liberties," Mr. Dulles said.

Earlier, Mr. Dulles said the United States provides a good market for Japanese goods, especially the high quality goods which "reflect Japanese skill and craftsmanship."

"We all know," he said, "that Japan faces serious economic problems that she is unable to produce all the food that her people require; that there are few natural resources and a shortage of capital to develop what there are; that military procurement from Japan for the United Nations in Korea may be shaken off; that new markets must be found for the output of Japan's factories so that she can pay for essential imports."

TRADE AVENUES "The must be an interchange of goods and services, and a flow of capital, if Japan is to be rehabilitated and is to attain a position of inner strength," said the Secretary of State.

"Japan can, in an increasing degree, do what will be helpful to its neighbours in aspects that they will welcome."

He added that, although Asian trade normally would be Japan's biggest market, she is not confined to that trade.

"We hope," he said in speaking of Japanese trade with the U.S., "that efforts will be made to seek for the development of trade and to ensure increasingly that the quantity and quality of trade will be such as serves the mutual interest."

PACIFIC SECURITY Speaking of the meeting in Washington last week of the ANZUS Council, Mr. Dulles assured his audience that the Council's decision not to enlarge its three-nation treaty was not an indication that the United States was abandoning attempts at a more comprehensive system of regional security in the Pacific area.

He explained that it was unlikely that any of the existing treaties in that part of the world could be used for the framework for such further development.

"Indeed, before there can be much useful development by way of multilateral treaties, there is need for the development within the Pacific area of a greater measure of international goodwill," he continued.

"I trust that these sentiments soon will come in a measure sufficient to warrant the development of all enlarged security measures," he said.

And he added: "I believe the Japan has made a substantial contribution to the achievement of these objectives."

Far East's Importance To America Significance Of Nixon Tour Washington, Sept. 17.

Vice-President Richard M. Nixon said today that his visit to the Far East and Southeast Asia next month is intended to demonstrate the Eisenhower policy of giving the same attention to that area as to Europe.

Mr. Nixon observed that there has been a tendency in recent years to put a primary emphasis on the problems of Europe.

At a press conference, Mr. Nixon said the Republican Administration's foreign policy places equal emphasis on the Far East and has equal interest in that part of the world.

The Secretary of State, Mr. John Foster Dulles, has repeatedly stated a similar position.

The Vice-President and his party will leave on October 8 for a nine-week goodwill tour of the Far East and Southeast Asia. He is to travel some 37,000 miles, visiting 16 Asian countries, Saudi Arabia, Libya and the Azores.

Mr. Nixon said that although the travel plan will take him in effect completely around the world, the great majority of the time will be spent in the Far East. He will not visit Europe or Central or South America.

The 40-year-old Vice-President will convey letters from the President expressing greetings to the heads of the nations which he visits.—United Press.

Rhodesian Demand London, Sept. 17.

Talks are expected to continue tomorrow on the drawing up of a new constitution for Northern Rhodesia.

Representatives of sections of the Northern Rhodesian community and the Colonial Office met earlier this week but made no statement.

Two delegations have come here—European and African—agreeing on one thing: both want more say in the Government of the Colony than is at present allowed by the Colonial Office.

The African delegates are Mr. P. Soko and Mr. D. L. Yamba—the only two African members of the Legislative Council.

Sir Roy Welensky is representing the interests of the Europeans.—China Mail Special.

Turk President To Visit U.S. Washington, Sept. 17.

President Eisenhower has accepted an invitation of President Beyer of Turkey to visit the United States in January, the White House said today.

The invitation was extended today at Ankara when Mr. Ayta Warren presented his credentials as the new American Ambassador to Turkey.—Reuter.

Japanese Legation Gets A Surprise Colombo, Sept. 17.

The Japanese Legation has received a surprise packet from the police—documents—said codes seized from it following Japan's entry into World War Two.

They were returned to the Legation yesterday—eight years after the seizure of the documents.—Reuter.

America Hoping For Results From Laniel's Visit

Washington, Sept. 17.

United States officials hope that the forthcoming meeting of President Eisenhower and the French Premier, M. Joseph Laniel, will prod France into approving the long-delayed European Army plan and whip up new enthusiasm for waging the Indo-Chinese war.

Officials said that these two subjects will get special emphasis when the two leaders meet here this Autumn for a general review of the relations between the United States and France.

MR NEHRU'S ANSWER TO REDS

New Delhi, Sept. 17.

Mr Jawaharlal Nehru, the Indian Prime Minister, tonight denied Communist allegations that India was "contaminated" by membership of the British Commonwealth.

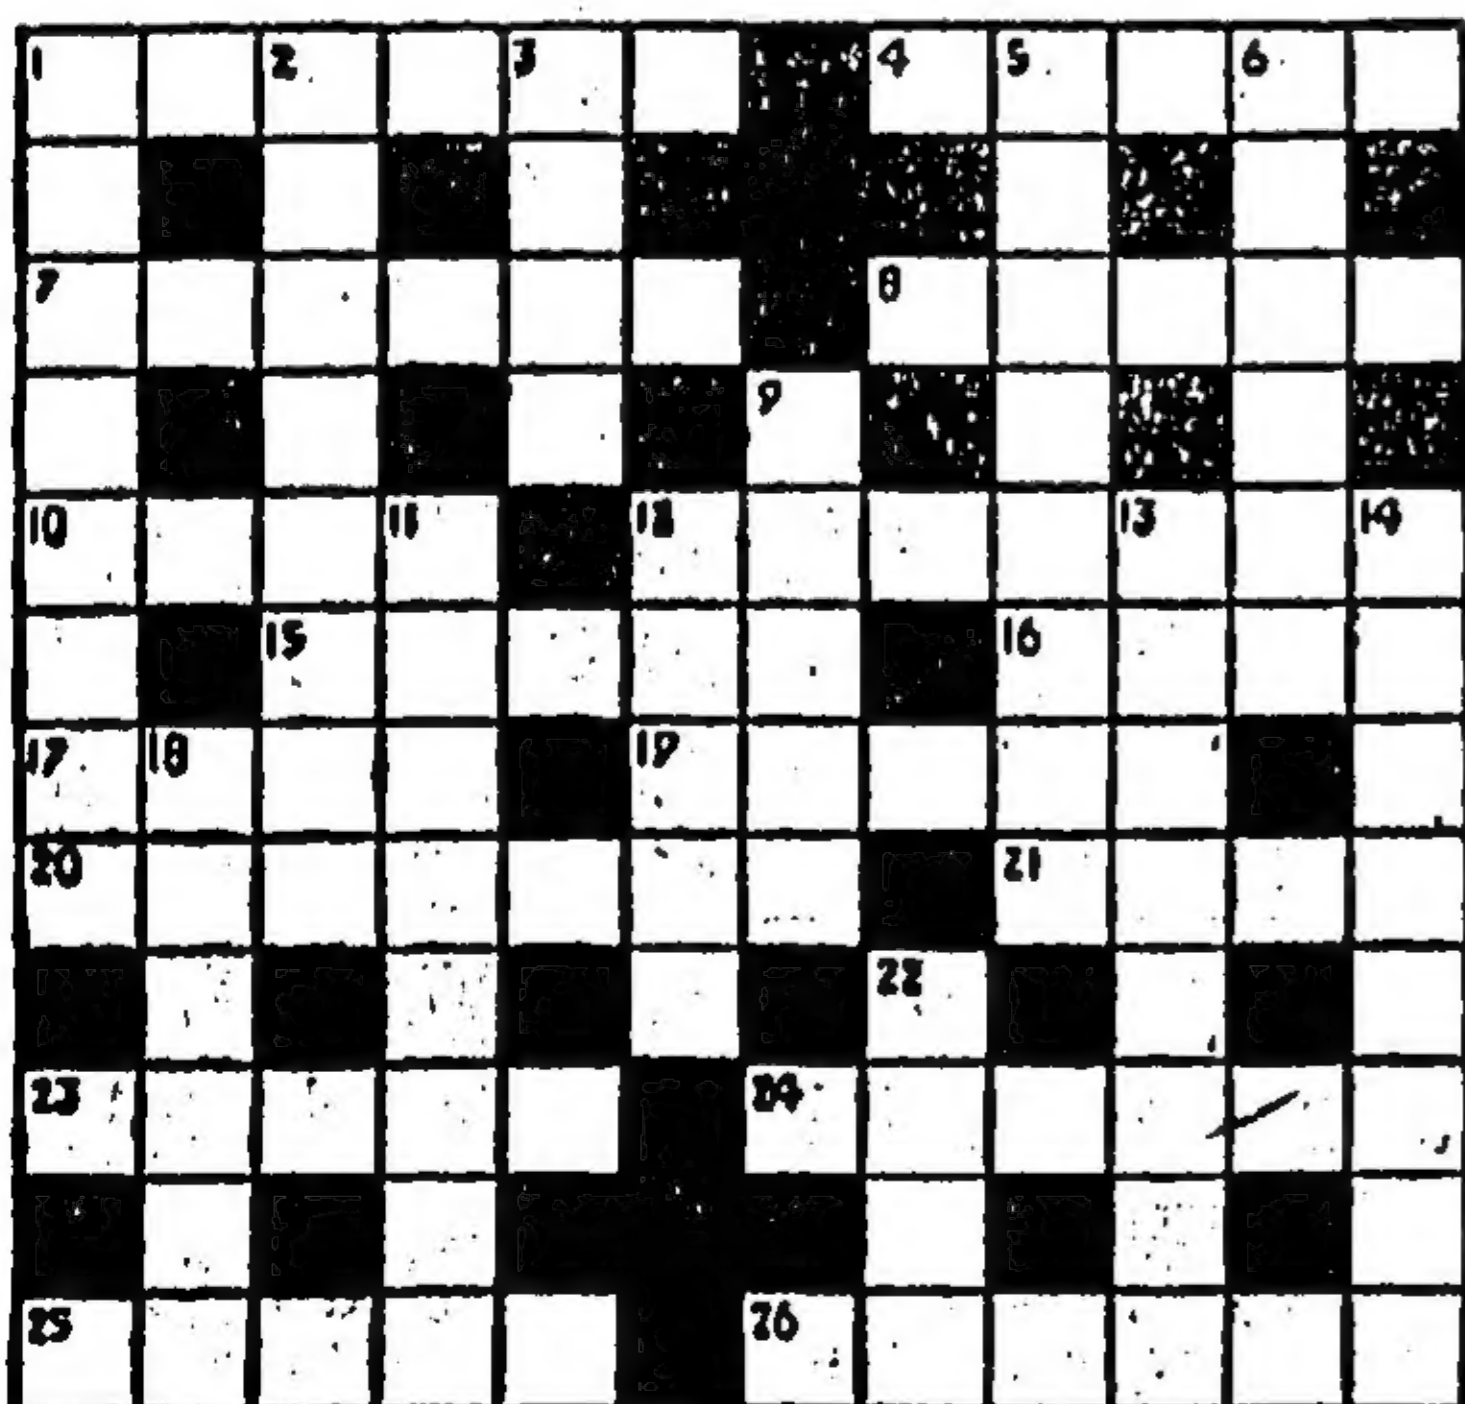

Answering Deputy Communist leader Hiren Mukerji during a foreign affairs debate in the House of the People (the Indian Lower House) Mr Nehru said: "It is an old Hindu caste outlook to talk of contamination through association with others."

"It is no use considering ourselves pinnacles of virtue and others bad and contaminating. Membership of the Commonwealth has enabled India to play a bigger part in international relations than she could otherwise have done."

During the debate Mr J. B. Kripalani, leader of the Indian Socialist Party, described the sending of India's custodian force to Korea as "a needless and costly expedition."

Mr Kripalani added: "We have been dabbling in international affairs in a manner which has made one party or the other always annoyed with us"—Reuter.

HST WILL MAKE TV
DEBUT

New York.
HARRY TRUMAN goes on TV soon to talk to young Americans of the opportunities ahead of them.

He will talk for ten minutes, for a reported fee of £285 a minute.

The date: September 20.
It will be the ex-President's first commercial TV appearance.
But he will not have to sell soap, cigarettes, or anything.

His £2,850 is paid by the Ford Foundation, a non-profit charity organisation set up in honour of the late Henry Ford.

WIMBLEDON may have seen the last of its current queen — 18-year-old Maureen (Little Mo) Connolly. Promoters are offering her 50,000 dollars (£17,857) to turn professional.

The tennis world expects she will snap it up. She is not a rich girl.

JILL O'BRIEN, 15-year-old daughter of Major-General
John O'Brien of the Australian Embassy, will be one of the two girls at an otherwise "stag" dinner for 18-year-old Crown Prince Akihito of Japan in Washington.

The daughter of a Japanese Minister will keep her company.
Jill was a playmate of Akihito in Tokyo years ago.

FIGURES: 24,895,000 U.S.

says a report. More than 376,000 were installed in July.
Americans smoke 397,000 million cigarettes, 6,000,000 cigars and 92,000,000lb. of tobacco a year, says the Agriculture Department. Cigar sales are up 3½ percent, and tobacco sales down 6 percent.

A MAN FAMOUS IN THE WORLD OF GLAMOUR REPLIES TO EVERY WOMAN WHO HAS EVER ASKED 'WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH ME?'

I like a woman with a mind of her own!

from LEONARD MOSLEY

What's the matter with her? It needs no panel of experts to judge this picture of Christiane Jacque and give the verdict: Nothing.

"I spend my life," he says,
"hoping I shall meet a really sophisticated woman. With the exception of my wife I have never met one."

Of all the Continental film producers, Christiane Jacque should really know what he is talking about when he gets on to the subject of sophistication.

Most of his films have been dedicated to the task of displaying women as cool, calculating beauties who are merely pliable material for twisting around their shapely ankles.

But it is only in his films that women make fools of men.

"In real life," he says, "what cowards women are when it comes to a battle between the sexes."

And he dreams of meeting a woman with the courage to stand up to the egotism of man and say, "I am in love with you, but that doesn't mean I will agree with everything you say or think. I have a mind of my own. I will not change my opinions—not even to make you like me."

"I don't want a doormat as a wife or as a fiancée," says Christian Jacque. "I don't want a woman who will obey me in everything I do—just because she is married to me."

"My idea of marriage is the union of two individuals with thoughts and ideas of their own who can live a joint life together but still preserve their separate feelings."

But what is a sophisticated woman as Christian Jacque sees her?

She need not necessarily be beautiful but she must have an inner urge to be attractive.
She must know the art of giving to a man without losing her own personality.

She must make a man think she is a constantly changing person—a different part of her always meeting his changing moods.

"The trouble with most women of today is their readiness to give way to any man who may come along and dominate them," says Christian Jacque.

At which point Christiane Carol, having performed a cool, calculating, and lovely scene in "Woman of Destiny," came off the set and sat down beside him.

"I've finished work now," she said. "What do we do tonight?"

"Let's go home," he said.

"No," she said. "I feel like going out."

"Please, let's go home."

"Yes, dear," said Christiane Jacque. And then added to me:
"You see what I mean? I like a woman with a personality of her own."

TOMORROW: Why
do women grow up?

SATELLITES SAY: 'GO HOME, IVAN!'

By Dennis Bardens

I DON'T know what genius of propaganda invented the Communist slogan, "Go home, Yankee!", although it is quite certain that it originated in Moscow, was passed on to the Cominform, and in due course echoed obediently by the Communist parties in Europe. Over the radio, in speeches, in the Russian and satellite press, it has been repeated ad nauseum.

But whoever started it cannot now be feeling so pleased with himself. The idea was to discredit American aid to Europe and to divide the NATO Powers. Now the slogan has recoiled against those who originated it. Nobody got very "hot up" about making the Americans return to the U.S.A., but the mere alteration of one word in the slogan makes it express, perfectly, the accumulating resentment of the people in the satellite countries against their exploiters. They are saying "Go home, Ivan"—not because they are told to, but because they mean it.

A SHOCK

This was the cry raised by the East Berlin rioters, and it must have come as a shock to the Russians to find themselves hoist, as it were, with their own
net. They had invented the cry against the Americans, but the echo has been stronger than the original.

The general bitterness against the Russians is due to the pattern of life which Communism has imposed on people who have known something better. Class warfare, the elimination of the most patriotic elements in the satellite countries, the regimentation of labour, the imposition of Russian as a secondary language, the monotony of Communist propaganda by radio and press—all these have produced a mood bordering on desperation.
Town dwellers of all types are dissatisfied because almost everything has changed for the worse. Factory workers are resentful because the constantly increasing "norms" imposed on them are simply a way of paying them less wages for the same work; hence production lags and consumer goods become too expensive—apart from the fact that much of the industrial output of the satellite countries finds its way to Russia anyway.

DISCONTENT

Country dwellers are equally discontented. They are denied the fruits of their labours. Pen-sants and farmers, attached to their land and by nature independent, loathe schemes of "collectivisation" which simply make them State serfs. Hence food production declines, and in Eastern Germany this problem has been aggravated by crass inefficiency in distribution.
Favoured classes have received too much; others too little. This injustice is one directly attributable to Communist theories on the organisation of society;
the Germans know that, left to their own devices, they could manage things far better.

Hence the general nature of the East German riot, which proclaimed in unmistakable terms the unpopularity of the Russian occupiers.

It is not just dissatisfaction with Communism which makes the Russian unwelcome. Naturally he is disliked for imposing this alien, inhuman way of life;
but he is hated for the airs he gives himself and the privileges he claims.

PRIVILEGES

In Rumania, for example, there are over 6,000 Russian civilians and military technicians in mufti in Bucharest, and to accommodate them two years ago the authorities requisitioned, despite an acute housing shortage, a large number of dwellings and villas sufficient to house 20,000 people.
These Russians have been given the best jobs in industry and government, are exempt from taxes and dues, can buy food at far less than the free market prices, enjoy free accommodation, together with free wireless sets and telephones, and draw salaries far in excess of those paid to Rumanians.

It is the same story in Hungary. No Hungarian can ever hope to earn the salaries paid to the Russians. The people of Budapest resent, in particular, the existence of the special Russian shops, where Hungarian produce can be bought at prices far below those which Hungarians themselves are forced to pay.

In Bulgaria, Soviet-Bulgarian mixed companies are exempt from all taxation and from the laws which govern accounting and the payment of salaries.
Russians are paid eight or nine times the salaries Bulgarians receive for similar work.
Everywhere Soviet "experts," "instructors" and "directors" ensure that Bulgaria's produce and natural wealth are diverted to Russia.

INSOLENCE

Soviet experts have discovered uranium deposits near Asenov-grad, and have proceeded to exploit them. A mixed company, "Gorubso" is mining lead and zinc in the Zlatograd-Smolen-Rudozhen area, a for-bidden zone where 10,000 workers are employed; their output goes straight to Russia.
The attitude of the Soviet occupiers of Bulgaria is apparently in the insolence of some Russians working at the Stalin station. They lived in the "Bulgaria" luxury hotel, but they complained of the inconvenience of having to drive —in the company car—from six to seven kilometres to work.
So the Bulgarians built them some houses near the station.

When the houses were completed the Russians refused to live in them, claiming that they were too uncomfortable.
Materials and labour desperately needed by the Bulgarians themselves had been shamefully wasted. But when someone attempted to raise this at a local Party meeting he was quickly reprimanded for his temerity.

RESENTMENT

These are far from mere pinpricks. Although the Russians keep to themselves and generally avoid incidents, the parasitic nature of their mission in the satellites is bitterly resented. It is obvious that they regard the nationalists of all countries except Russia as their inferiors. In fact Josef Roy, Deputy Secretary of the Hungarian Workers' (Communist) Party and his country's principal ideological spokesman, declared in the Journal of the Com-inform, For a Lasting Peace, for A People's Democracy, on March 27, 1953:

"In the Soviet State large and small peoples are equal.
The Great Russian people are the first among equals."
If, this seems curious logic it is at least a frank admission. It reminds me of a quotation from George Orwell's "Animal Farm": "All animals are equal, but some animals are more equal than others."

AN EXCUSE FOR A CURRENCY RACKET

From COLIN LAWSON

Leipzig.
COME with me behind the Iron Curtain for a look at East Germany's bewildering
Leipzig Fair. Five days
I've been here. It is bewildering because we see a tight Police State trying to look as though it is not a Police State.

Three days ago I complained that, according to the police, sticking to ridiculous currency regulations, and all the other controls were wasting my time.
The police shrugged, and said:
"Oh well, forget it. It's fair time. We are not being too strict."

But English visitors who flew in to Leipzig Airport said entry control was so strict that English papers used for shoe wrappings were taken away. Wallets were searched, and the contents noted.
The Reds have made the Fair
an excuse for a currency racket.
To the 150 British business men who came in they charged the £ at nine marks. A truer value would be 60 marks.

EXTRA FOOD

The Reds make sure no Englishman leaves with unearned sterling. Meals at £3 a day, cigarettes at 6s. a packet, petrol at 9s. 6d. a gallon, steam rent 22s.
a night, and a compulsory deduc-tion of 35s. for every day in the East zone take care of that.
But perhaps to soothe our feelings extra food was sent. Wines filled the cellars of the State-run hotels and restaurants.

Hundreds of flags of all nations flap over the Fair. All, including the Union Jack, are sewn on to the Red Flag of Communism.
I told the Reds this was a liberty. Also, they said, it is too late now to correct.

More than 8,000 exhibitors from East and West Germany have stands, 3,500 from Russia, the Iron Curtain countries and Western Europe.

And 80,000 people have swarmed in to see.
The Fair represents achievement. To experts it shows improvement in quality. But production figures are secret.
Russia dominates the technical fairground. A 20ft. statue of Stalin stands in the marble-floored hall.

THE HEMLINE

Everywhere Russians show their latest machinery.
I went to the first fashion show for visitors. It was given by the Russians. And, behold, they have the new Dior hemline.

YOUR BIRTHDAY... By STELLA

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 18

BORN today, you are one of those temperamental contradictions which make it difficult for you to have an even life, no matter what the circumstances are surrounding you. Blessed with a tremendous store of nervous energy, you are also, at times, plain "bone lazy" and must learn to overcome a restlessness for procrastination if you are to make a success of anything you undertake.

You have a tremendous amount of will power and when you want something, you go out after it, hammer and tongs. This force is the way to completion, you are much too apt to lose interest and hunt around for something new. Learn about everything else to finish the job you begin before starting another, or your life will be strewn with wasted hopes and frustrated ambitions.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 19

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)—Still a time for you to think things over carefully before committing yourself to any long-range objective.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)—Presumption is a lot easier than being gay, but being optimistic right now will pay the best dividends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)—Let down tensions today, even if you have to do it quite consciously. Just loaf around for a change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)—Health comes first this week-end. Relax and rest as much as you can. Don't attempt to do too much either.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)—Travel is all right today, if you are careful to observe all proper rules of the road. Don't be late.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)—A fine day for the lighter, brighter things of life. Leave your worries completely in the past.

TO set fire to a building in order to test the credentials of a professional fire-eater is rather like using a road-drill to crack a boiled egg.

When a house caught fire the other day in California, a carnival fire-eater was seized with a fit of coughing. He was probably one of those who like their fire without smoke. Or perhaps he had never eaten any bigger than a candle-flame. There are sword-swallowers who will eat a small ceremonial sword, but they are not the same as the professional fire-eaters. When I swallowed for the South Minna Steel Carriers' used to abstain from steel on Friday, and finish in sword-fish.

RUSTIGUZZI sang a number of leader at the Aeolian Hall yesterday. Owing to the presence of a bluebird, which sat on her nose, she had difficulty with the first gesture. When she was following the song in a massive tone, "Shine!" at the false ending, she was caught by a piano-tuner in the wings. The song then dragged its dreary way to a three-welcome conclusion.

THE bidding of today's hand looks rather weird, and this is not extraordinary because it really is weird. Both sides were struggling very hard to play the hand, and this was fairly reasonable up to North's final bid of four spades.

It should have been obvious to North that his partner had a weak hand and that the strength was fairly evenly divided between the two partnerships. Game should have been out of the question.

West opened the eight of hearts, and South won with his singleton king. The prospect was far from alluring, since South expected to lose two diamonds and the two black aces.

Concealing his dislike of the contract, South led a trump to trick. West hopped up with the ace of spades, and South waited patiently for the opponents to take their two diamond tricks.

Fortunately for declarer, however, West was the sort of player who hated to lead away from his king. West therefore returned another heart.

This was all South needed to make his game contract. He played dummy's ace of hearts with great relief, discarding a losing diamond from his hand. He next drew trumps with the king and queen of spades, after which he led a club to force out West's ace.

West was still afraid to lead diamonds, so he led another heart. Thereupon South ruffed and ran the rest of his clubs to discard all of the red cards from dummy.

By this means South made 11 tricks on a hand that should have been good for only nine tricks.

In this case the shift to diamonds should have been fairly easy. East had made a free bid of two hearts with no high card in spades, and a queen-high heart suit.

Obviously, East had strength in either diamonds or clubs, and he was far more likely to be encouraged by diamond strength (which West had bid) than by strength in clubs.

MY THREE TYPES OF WOMEN

says EILEEN ASCROFT

1 has CHARM 2 has SEX APPEAL 3 has NEITHER, but...

IN London on holiday recently was a young woman with that rare quality, CHARM.

She is 33-year-old, hazel-eyed Teresa Wright.

Although she has more stage and film success behind her than most actresses, Hollywood's attempts to glamourise her have failed.

She remains a simple, reserved, almost plain. But when she smiles, she radiates charm. And when she laughs, she sparkles and becomes almost beautiful.

Strangely enough she lacks the more usual film star attribute of sex appeal.

Attractive women fall into three classes: those with charm and those with sex appeal and those who possess neither but have compensating qualities like brains, beauty, green fingers, culinary talents or good hearts.

When I saw Teresa in New York recently I was reminded of James Barrie's definition of charm: "It's a sort of bloom on a woman."

It is just that. Something that has not been rubbed off by everyday experience. An intangible mixture of indifference, friendliness, enthusiasm, vitality, sympathy and a young interest in new places and people.

A woman with charm need be no raving beauty, and her age does not matter. It does not come out of a beauty box or a perfume bottle and no dress designer can create it. It cannot be learned in etiquette books and material success cannot influence it.

A woman either has charm or she hasn't.

If she has, she always possesses a pretty mouth and a bewitching smile.

Women with charm are rare, but I would include Lady Balcon.

Dame Edith Evans, Lady Jebb, the Duchess of Gloucester, Mrs Patricia Ford, MP, and Lady Vanitart.

Sex appeal is less captivating though perhaps more devastating. It is a combination of animal magnetism, provocation and a challenging twinkle in the eye.

Hollywood beauties like Marilyn Monroe, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Hedy Lamarr and Rita Hayworth have it. Mrs Penny Ridgway and Mrs Clark Gable (even at 49) possess it.

On the stage you find it in Lady Olivier, and even in the House of Commons in the engaging figure of Mrs Barbara Castle.

Spanish steps

DANCING alppers from Spain bring a new luxury to London.

These pretty, light-weight sandals in black suede and bronze, guano and patent leather, are hand-made by craftsmen in the Isle of Mallorca.

Made on American lasts, they are cheap for a hand-made shoe at seven guineas.

Leisure

A FREE - FROM - FAMILY - CARES club for young mothers has opened at Shoreham.

The club meets one afternoon a week, when members' families are looked after by voluntary baby-watchers.

Three child experts have praised the scheme.

PSYCHIATRIST—“Excellent for children to spend time away from their mothers. It gives them a chance to adjust themselves to strangers.”

DOCTOR—“There would be fewer cases of ‘nerves’ in my consulting room if mothers had an occasional rest from their families.”

NURSE—“Good training for children. They usually behave better with strangers than with their own parents.”

Let's hope this good idea will spread to give other young mothers more fun and freedom.

This week in London FASHION

A DEPARTMENT for brighter housewives has opened with the prettiest-est selection of aprons, overalls and working clothes. Many have matching Dutch bonnets to protect the hair from dust.

Aprons include flowered nylon, reversible aprons, aprons and coloured crash, with small 'b' and large front striped pocket lined with plastic.

Newer than overalls, and elegant enough to go shopping, are the "shortie" housecoats. For gardening there is a wrap-around frock in denim with large flower-trimmed pockets and an adjustable waistband for jobs that require bending.

BEAUTY

FROM America comes a liquid face-lift. Stroked on under the foundation during the day, it condenses its good work of smoothing lines and firming muscles. Used at night it is inviolable.

This is an important addition to the beauty wardrobe, particularly for the woman over 35.

HOME

MUSIC while you work in the kitchen is provided by a gay little that plays a musical tune when it boils. And for the bed-sitting room occupants there's a portable closed-in fish fryer that eliminates all odour and splashing.

A Very Confusing Adventure

—Some Two-Headed Folk Made Christopher Dizzy—

By MAX TRELL

"HAD a very curious adventure last night," Christopher Cricket said to Knarf and Hanid, the shadow-children with the turned-about names. "It all happened after everyone in the house was fast asleep."

Knarf said: "All your adventures happen in the night after everyone is asleep?"

All So Strange

Christopher nodded. "I guess that's why all my adventures are so strange and hardly any one ever believes them. But I hope you will believe this one. I call it, 'The Adventure of the Upside-Down Kings and Queens.'"

Knarf and Hanid begged Christopher Cricket to tell them about this adventure.

"Now," continued Christopher to Knarf and Hanid, "this all sounded very strange and I decided to see what it was all about. So I hopped up to the top of the table, and there I saw one of the most curious sights I've ever seen in my life."

Weren't Like Ordinary Ones

"A King and a Queen were standing on the table looking at each other. But they weren't like ordinary Kings and Queens, who, as everyone knows, are really only people like everyone else. This King and Queen each had two heads. One head was at the top, like everybody else's head, but the other head was at the bottom, where everybody else's feet are."

"In other words," said Christopher Cricket, "this King and Queen stood on one of their heads and spoke through their other head. They also kept jumping up in the air and spinning around, so that the head that was on top one minute became the head that they stood on the next minute."

"How confusing," said Hanid. "Confusing isn't the word for it," said Christopher Cricket. "It made me dizzy just looking at them. And to add to the trouble, some more Kings and Queens, came running out from the other end of the table. And then some Jacks came running over. Pretty soon the whole top of the table was full of spinning Kings and Queens and Jacks, all shouting and arguing."

Never Found Out

Knarf wanted to know what the card-people (for that's what all the Kings and Queens and Jacks were, of course) were arguing about.

"I never really found out," said Christopher Cricket. "But I think it had something to do with their being all mixed up inside the pack of cards. They all wanted to be together, and they started blaming each other for being in different places. But it wasn't their fault at all. It was the way they had been left by Mother and Father and the company after they had finished playing with them."

"Everything was finally settled, though," Christopher said. "They all got together—the King and Queen of Hearts, and the King and Queen of Spades, and the King and Queen of Diamonds, and the King and Queen of Clubs and the proper Jacks, who were really princes, got together with the proper mothers and fathers, and they all went quietly spinning back into the pack of cards at the other end of the table."

"But it still left me feeling dizzy," Christopher said, as he uncrossed his legs and stood up. "Nobody should have two heads. It makes everything too confusing."

"That's what I said before," laughed Hanid.

How To Prepare "The Love Apple"

By ALICE DENHOFF

THE tomato, in all its forms, makes an invaluable contribution to cookery. So here are some recipes that star the "love apple."

Dressing up the humble hamburger or sausage patty is a good budget notion. For 4 servings, use 4 hamburger patties one inch thick or ½ inch thick sausage patties. Arrange meat and 4 tomato halves on pre-heated broiler rack, placing about 5 inches below heat. Broil 6 to 8 minutes or until meat is browned. Turn meat.

Baked Curried Tomatoes

Brush 4 firm, ripe bananas with melted butter and sprinkle with salt. Place bananas on rack with meat and tomatoes, and continue broiling about 8 minutes longer or until bananas are tender (easily pierced with a fork).

Jellied soup time coming along, so here's a fine recipe. Place in kettle, 2/3 c. each finely diced carrots, onions and celery, one c. cooked tomatoes, 2 1/2 c. water and 4 chicken bouillon cubes. Bring to boil and simmer, covered, ½ hour longer. Add ½ c. chopped dill pickles and tsp. Worcestershire sauce.

Measure soup, and for each cup, use tsp. plain unflavoured gelatin. Soften gelatin in ¼ c. cold water for 5 minutes. Re-heat soup to boiling point and add gelatin, stirring until it is dissolved. Chill. When slightly thickened, stir to prevent vegetables from settling to bottom. Chill until softly set.

To prepare a delicious French dressing, rub together a tiny garlic clove, ½ tsp. dry mustard, 1 tsp. confectioners' sugar, ½ tsp. salt and dash of tobacco sauce in a small bowl, until the oil of the garlic has been thoroughly mixed. Add 1/3 c. vinegar and combine well; remove garlic. Add ½ c. salad oil and one c. tomato juice.

Elegant, that's the word for Baked Curried Tomatoes. The recipe is for 6.

Scald and peel 6 tomatoes, and remove the stem end. Arrange in deep greased baking dish.

Combine one c. tomato sauce, 2 tsp. curry powder, 1 tsp. currant jelly; cook for 5 minutes. Season with tsp. salt and dash of pepper, and pour over tomatoes. Mix ¼ c. grated American cheese and ¼ c. buttered crumbs and sprinkle over top.

Bake at 375° F. for about 20 minutes. Top with 6 slices of bacon, and return to oven until bacon is crisp and browned.

Moral Support A Deciding Factor In Slimming

By IDA JEAN KAIN

SUCCESS or failure in reducing depends largely on how you think and feel about this business of taking off weight... with or without the moral support of the family.

To get the picture... we'll compare two overweight, both 30 pounds above normal. Naturally they want to be rid of the extra pounds; and slip smoothly into dresses two sizes smaller. They start dieting.

But one overweight seriously doubts that she can stay on a diet... it's not that she isn't willing, but she has tried so many times, and after about two weeks—always goes back to the old fattening ways of eating. Her husband, having been through these sessions before, is mildly derisive of her attempts to diet. That adds to her own doubts and weakens her will power. Not feeling at all confident that she can banish the excess pounds, it doesn't seem worth her while to persist or to forgo favourite foods.

Since no one likes to fall at anything... she then rationalizes that weight runs in her family, anyway, and that it's foolish to try to go against nature—none of which is true, but somehow seems comforting.

Vote Of Confidence

Now our other overweight, with a like capacity to lose, goes on a diet. The doctor has suggested that reducing would improve her health and restore her former zip and zest. She has talked it over with her husband and he has offered to co-operate by going without his accustomed cake and dinner, thereby giving her his vote of confidence. When the most important person in your life has faith that you can and will reduce... that bolsters resolve.

In this case, the moral support was so needed, for his overweight had a difficult time losing. One week went by, then ten days, and not a pound off. But since she had not deviated from the diet and was "alerted" to the bugaboo of water storage, she recognized that the system must be retaining water in the tissues.

On The Right Track

Knowing she was on the right track, kept her from feeling too discouraged. On the 16th day, the pointer plunged eight pounds. That night, to celebrate, her husband took her out to dinner. She had broiled steak, a vegetable and salad without dressing, and for dessert, crackers and cheese and coffee. The next day she was happy to continue her dieting efforts. It is evident why this overweight succeeded while the other failed.

But let's get straight on one point: self-pity is in and away more demoralizing than any lack of moral support from the family. And if you have given the family plenty of reason to doubt your intentions, don't blame them for being skeptical. Why not use their skepticism as a challenge?

Household Hints

When you let down a "little girl's skirt," you may find that a white line shows at the old hemline, where the material has become worn through abrasion. Flat braid or rickrack will cover this. Three rows of braid look like a planned trim. On a plain skirt, embroidered braid would be pretty.

To clean washable wallpaper, first wet a small working section of the wall with cold water. Then sponge this area with cool soapsuds, moving the sponge in even strokes and in one direction only. Rinse immediately with a sponge wrung out in clean cold water.

The President of the Asian Games Federation, Mr Jorge B. Vargas, who is also President of the Philippines Amateur Athletic Federation, stated in an interview in Hongkong yesterday that Hongkong's athletes — be they Asian or European — would all be welcome at the Asian Games in Manila next May provided they were British subjects and the Games' Organising Committee was satisfied that they could legitimately call Hongkong their home.

Even the Philippines, Mr Vargas said, was quite likely to be represented by some non-Asians. In fact, he added, non-Asians had represented the Philippines in international fixtures before. One of the leading basketball players was a German with no Filipino blood, but he had elected to take out Philippines citizenship and was as eligible to represent the country as any other national.

FINAL YARDSTICK

A Chinese born in Hongkong who had not established his British nationality would be eligible to represent China, Mr. Vargas said, "but, of course, have to satisfy the Organizing Committee that he had established his Chinese nationality," that he was, in fact, a native of China and accepted as such in the legal interpretation of "national".

BEST PERFORMANCES BY BRITISH COMMONWEALTH AND EMPIRE ATHLETES

Recent outstanding performances by British athletes include Gordon Pirie's new British and Empire Two Miles record of 8 minutes 47.8 seconds made at the floodlit City Charities Meeting at the White City, London, on September 9.

At the same meeting, the veteran Bill Nankeville, running against Audun Boysen of Norway and Nils Toft of Sweden, returned his fastest ever time for the Mile — 4 minutes 7.4 seconds — to beat Boysen in an inches finish with Toft third in 4:09.4.

Australian performances for the 1952-53 season in the appended list of best performances by British Empire and Commonwealth athletes for the period between Sept. 18, 1952, and September 12, 1953, have been selected to conform with an official list issued by Mr. A. J. Hodson, Hon. Secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of Australia.

Particularly affected by the revision are Australian sprint times.

The list of best performances follows:

"Peace Offensive" Against Japan

Tokyo, Sept. 17. The leader of Japan's Progressive Party, Mr. Mamoru Shigemitsu, told a press conference today that he believed Russia will intensify its peace offensive against Japan next month when international talks on Germany and Korea are due to begin.

Mr. Shigemitsu, an advocate of peace, said that Russia's peace offensive directed against Japan will attempt to break off the Japanese-American relationship and to prevent Japan from having her own defense army and receiving Mutual Security Agency aid from the United States.

He stressed that the Yoshida Government should take "prompt and efficient measures" to cope with possible attempts by Communists and leftist elements to disturb Japan's peace and order.

The powerful daily, Yomiuri, reported today that Russian-connected letters arriving from Japanese held in Russia began to bring hope for early repatriation of Japanese prisoners in Russia.

The paper said one of the letters arrived this week from Tokyo, Hayashi, Imperial Army officer, had such phrases as "We have hope. I am eagerly awaiting the day to return home."

The paper said letters received until June this year never had such words.

The paper said Russia might return a large number of Jap-

To Make Survey Of Nigeria

Washington, Sept. 17. The World Bank announced today that it is sending a mission to take a general survey of the economy of Nigeria.

The mission, which will arrive in Lagos on September 28, is making a three-month survey at the request of the Nigerian and British Governments.

Stevenson Speech Is Hailed

London, Sept. 17.

Mr Adlai Stevenson, Democratic candidate in the last United States Presidential election, is hailed as a heartening "Voice of America" by the British newspapers which today analysed his recent speech in Chicago.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian applauded him for being "sensitive" to the viewpoint of other nations; the mass circulation Daily Mirror welcomes him because "Here is a Voice of America to cheer the friends America has so often dismayed."

The Manchester Guardian said the substance of the speech could have come almost as readily from President Eisenhower or Mr John Foster Dulles, the United States Secretary of State.

"The difference lies in the spirit in which it is said," the Manchester Guardian stated.

Quoting the Stevenson phrase, "the door to the conference room is the door to peace—let it never be said that America was reluctant to enter," the paper added:

"What a contrast with the chilly reception which official Washington gave to Sir Winston Churchill's proposal in May for a high-level meeting with the Russians."—China Mail Special.

FOURTH IN MONTH

Singapore, Sept. 17.

A Southeast Asia observation group, composed of seven members of the Japanese Lower House, arrived this afternoon by air from Djakarta. The team is headed by Mr Ichiro Honda, and is the fourth Japanese mission to visit the Colony this month.

The group is to make a one-day return trip to Kuching, Sarawak, tomorrow.

They will inspect industrial activities in Singapore on Saturday and leave for Saigon on Sunday.—Router.

Foreign Policies Attacked

London, Sept. 17.

Mr Douglas Jay, Labour MP and former Financial Secretary to the Treasury, tonight criticised the British and American foreign policies.

Speaking in London, he said: "It is a tragedy that Britain has no real Foreign Secretary at the critical moment when a lead from Britain is needed if the Korea peace conference is to be saved."

"For Mr Dulles' blundering diplomacy is in danger of wrecking it, and destroying the Anglo-American understanding built up by the statesmanship of Mr Ernest Bevin and Mr Acheson."

"Apparently, Mr Dulles values the friendship of Mr Syngman Rhee more highly than that of Britain and the Commonwealth," Mr Jay said.

He declared: "The British public are determined not to take part in a general war against China."

"They want the United Nations to be a forum for settling disputes and enforcing the law, not an anti-Communist club."

"They believe that the Peking Government, as the real Government of China, ought now to be members of the United Nations."

"They want a peaceful settlement in the Far East, and they are convinced that the peace-loving countries, like India, should contribute powerfully to it."—France-Press.

Ship Orders For Japan

Tokyo, Sept. 17.

Isihikawajima Heavy Industry, Japan's leading ship builder, said today it had formally accepted a construction request of two freighters by the Brazilian Navy—each 4,200 tons deadweight.

The industry said one vessel will be delivered in 12 months and the other in 14 months. The cost per freighter is $2,550,000. Under the terms of the contract payment is to be made over a period of four years.—China Mail Special.

Japan's First Minister To Cambodia

Salon, Sept. 17.

The Cambodian Government has agreed to the appointment of Mr Tokozo Araki as Japan's first Minister in Phnom Penh, authoritative sources said today.

He is expected to arrive here in a few days.

In the meantime, Mr Juhei Hirono, Japan's Minister-designate to Vietnam, is still unacceptable by the Vietnamese Government although he has been waiting here for a month.

President Nguyen Van Thum has been insisting that Japan should sign a reparations agreement before a Minister is recognised.

Usually reliable sources said Vietnam offered $2,000,000,000 and Japan offered $10,000,000.

Mr Hirono told Reuters today that the expected to be recognised as Minister within a few weeks' time.—Reuters.

Yoshida Not Going To U.S.

Tokyo, Sept. 17.

The Chief Cabinet Secretary, Mr Kenji Fukunaga, said today the Japanese Premier, Mr Shigeru Yoshida, will not be able to visit the United States this year.

The Secretary denied the possibility of Mr Yoshida's early visit to the United States, saying that the delay in working out the defence programme will force the Premier to postpone his trip to Washington for a considerable time.

The Premier was reported to be planning a visit to the United States to confer with United States leaders on Japan's rearmament programme and United States foreign policy.—Reuters.

Almost Invisible British Exhibit At Trade Fair

(From Ralph Hewins)

Stockholm, Sept. 17.

A well-nigh invisible "exhibit" is the star turn of the 26-nation St Erik Trade Fair in Stockholm.

It is a microscopic ball for bearings—a triumph of British craftsmanship and already a substantial dollar-earner.

Imagine the ball of a ball-point pen... Well, that is a hundred times greater in volume than the new "midjet" which has never been "shown" abroad before.

It is so tiny, that Mr Edward Fothergill, sales manager of the Crawley, Sussex, manufacturers, often cannot find it in its oil phial with the aid of a magnifying glass or even a microscope. "It disappears into the seams in the stopper," he says.

In the United States it is already being used in advanced laboratory work by a brilliant refugee scientist, Dr Kube Kisch.

When the first consignment arrived in the States the laboratory called to Crawley. "We ordered steel balls. Why did you send oil phials?" The reply was "Look again."

Even the Swedes, inventors of ball-bearings, are amazed. The great Swedish firm L. M. Eriksson Ltd., which operated the world's first telephone system, has placed orders. So have the A. G. A. stove people.

The new Stockholm Underground Railway and the traffic lights of the city (pop. 1,000,000) will be controlled or "refined" by the mighty British midjet. Even the Ministry of Defence is interested.

NEW VISTAS

Mr Fothergill claims: "New vistas are opened in the finest possible instrument work in physics, chemistry, medicine, engineering and aeronautics."

The baby ball is 3/100ths (0.003) of an inch in diameter. One ton of steel produces a million balls; and in the process multiplies the value of the metal 200 times.

The brain behind the miracle midjet is 45-year-old Mr John Bass, managing-director, and his 75-year-old father, Mr John Bass sen., who have been in bearings a lifetime. John senior opened the first ball-bearing factory in France.

But it is not the Bass dynasty which attracts the millions of sightseers to the £25,000 British Pavilion. The eye-catcher is an unusual flower—a villanous, spiky yellow plant which Mr Fothergill calls an aphelandra.

I will take his word for it—also his assurance that the baby ball does in fact exist. So far I have not been able to spot it.

British Refining Outlook

Contribution, which the Merseyside area is making to the development of the petroleum industry, was referred to by Mr A. J. Carter, chief technologist of Shell Mex and B.P. Ltd., Stanlow, in an address at the annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science in Liverpool.

The oil industry, said Mr Carter, had made some startling advances in the last 10-15 years in methods of exploration for oil, in production, transport, refining, distribution, and utilisation.

In 1946, Britain imported 2,500,000 tons of crude oil, and about 10,000,000 tons of petroleum products were consumed. In 1952, 22,000,000 tons of crude oil were imported and just under 24,000,000 tons of petroleum products were consumed. These figures illustrated what had taken place. Instead of the finished products being imported, the crude oil itself was being imported and refined in Britain, and Merseyside's share of that was about one-fifth.

Including the Manchester Ship Canal in the Merseyside area, Mr Carter said there were approximately 18 installations manufacturing, handling or distributing petroleum products in the area, and eight of them were either new or had been on site and expanded since 1946. In one case, the intake had increased tenfold—from 0.4 m. tons in 1946 to 4.2 m. tons in 1952.

ECONOMICAL POINT

The location of the industry did not depend upon the particular location of raw materials, but was dictated by transport. Refining accounted for plenty of capital, but an equal amount went in tankers, pipelines, vehicle fleets and other means of distribution. The refinery, therefore, must be located at the most economical point, and, for that part of the country, it was Merseyside. The changeover from refining in remote parts of the world to refining in Britain had been motivated by a number of factors. As refining became more flexible and markets more diverse, the point arrived 15-18 years ago, when crude oil could be refined in the consuming country and all of its products could be used.

Outlining factors influencing the changeover, Mr Carter said that crude oil production in a given area tended first to rise on exploration and declined as the fields became exhausted. Refining in the producing area, therefore, was subject to fluctuations. Another factor was that a good many of the oil-producing areas were politically unstable, so there was a reluctance to put a lot of refining capacity in the country concerned. The industry was highly complex in equipment requirements and operating techniques, and was more easily operated in an industrialised country, where they had equipment, manufacturers, research organisations, technical staffs and skilled labour.

NEW EQUIPMENT

As a result of those and other factors, the oil companies decided refining in Britain should expand, and expand it did at an incredible rate. The background for that expansion was very favourable, as most of the companies had long experience of operating refineries abroad, and a lot of intensive wartime development was applicable for peace-time use. Moreover, the industry could build from the ground up and did not have to superimpose on obsolescent equipment, technique and sites, so the country was in possession of a brand new industry capable of supplying all its requirements of refined petroleum products.

Mr Carter said that Merseyside refined about 5,000,000 tons of petroleum per annum, and the quality was as high, if not higher, than anywhere in the world. An interesting point, Mr Carter observed, was that the Manchester Ship Canal, built in 1874, had stood up to the load manfully. It had handled enormously increased traffic and only broken down when the oil companies began to build giant tankers of 30,000-40,000 tons; that, he added, was beyond the vision of the builders of the canal.

BIGGEST OIL DOCK

He referred to the construction of the new oil dock at Eastham, which would handle those giant tankers, and he recalled the comment of an American friend who inspected it: "Nobody could make that for anything but a hole in the ground. But, added Mr Carter, it was the biggest hole in the ground one had ever seen."

Referring to Merseyside's importance in the new industry, Mr Carter said that, looking at it in quite soberly and disinterestedly, there was no other part of the country or comparable area in the world which had such a concentration of diverse industries based on petroleum.

U.S. Business Omens Said To Be Better

By SYDNEY S. CAMPBELL

Reuter's Financial Editor

Construction contract awards in the United States during the summer were running below last year and were showing a more than seasonal drop. Construction has great importance for the general business prospect, and on the whole the latest omens are better.

Even during the summer building expenditures, as distinct from contracts awarded, ran at record levels and seemed likely to remain very high, even if below the spring peak. More recently contract awards have improved and have reversed the previous softening.

Commercial, educational and scientific building has reached new records. Even housing contracts keep up extremely well.

If this can be maintained, nothing on the physical side will be more important—subject always to the qualification that all physical factors in the U.S. may be less important than sentimental ones.

The automobile industry must slacken, simply because its pace has been far too hot to keep up. Even this is not necessarily bearish. The remarkable thing is how hot a pace the major manufacturers have kept up and for how long.

Russia Tests More Atom Bombs

London, Sept. 17. Russia has tested several new types of atomic bombs in the past few weeks, Tass, the official news agency, said tonight. The announcement said the experimental trials were successful.

The Soviet news agency, Tass, said that though Russia was giving attention to the production of atomic weapons, the nation also followed a policy of strengthening peace and trying to reach agreement with other countries on the absolute prohibition of atomic, hydrogen and other kinds of weapons of mass destruction.

Chartering Of Ship Claim

So that further evidence could be called concerning the market rate for chartering ships during September and October, 1950, a case brought by John Mannings and Co., Ltd. against Lien Foo Co. was adjourned by Mr. Justice Reece this morning until Saturday, September 26.

Plaintiffs, represented by Mr. Patrick Yu, are claiming for $91,408.83 from the defendants, who have left the Colony. Mr. B. P. C. Fletcher, a member of the plaintiff firm, told the Court that his firm suffered damage by reason of the failure of the defendant to redeliver the ship as chartered party dated July 4, 1950. The plaintiffs claim is $115,833.33, representing 40 days at $2,500 a day, less $24,426.70 which they estimate they owe to the defendant firm. The account of John Mannings and Co., Ltd., as Mr. Yu explained in detail, how the amount owed by the plaintiffs was calculated, and Mr. Yu drew attention to a clause of the charter party which stipulated that should the charterers fail to deliver the ship by the agreed date they would be liable to pay at the current market price and not at the price originally decided.

Mr. Yu said that the market price in September-October was estimated by the defendants to be $75,000 for 30 days. This was arrived at because a smaller ship than the Baralaba had been chartered at $55,000 and on October 18 that year the Baralaba itself was chartered at $75,000. Mr. Reece requested more evidence from the responsible officials on this point, before he could assess the damage to the plaintiffs.

Tass said Russia wanted strict international control for the collection of these decisions. Russia was meanwhile exploring the use of atomic energy for industrial purposes. The Tass announcement, which appeared on page two of the Soviet newspapers under the heading "Tass statement," said: "In the last few weeks, in accordance with the plans of scientific research work in the sphere of atomic energy in the Soviet Union, there were carried out trials of some new types of atomic bombs. The trials were carried out successfully."

"It is quite clear that at the time that responsible circles of the United States resisted the persistent proposals of the Soviet Union about the prohibition of atomic weapons, the Soviet Union proceeded from the demands of security is able to give attention to the production of atomic weapons."

"Together with this the Soviet Union will continue to follow a policy of strengthening peace between peoples and trying to achieve agreement with other countries on the absolute prohibition of atomic, hydrogen and other kinds of weapons of mass destruction, considerable reduction of armaments and the establishment of strict international control for the realization of these decisions."

"Together with this in the Soviet Union, work is carried out for the employment of atomic energy for industrial purposes. The Soviet Union considers its most important task is to ensure that atomic energy is put to the service of the cause of peaceful progress."—Reuter.

Expenditure Exceeds Revenue

The financial statement for the month of June this year, published in the Government Gazette today, revealed an excess of expenditure over revenue amounting to $1,051,274.27.

The total revenue collected in June amounted to $27,431,204.77, while expenditure for the same period came to the larger figure of $28,082,478.44.

Revision Of Charter To Be Considered

New York, Sept. 17. The United Nations General Assembly, rejecting Soviet protests, decided today to place on its agenda proposals for preparatory work regarding possible revision of the United Nations Charter in 1955.

The voting was 51 votes to five (the Soviet group), with one abstention.

Mr. Jacob Malik, the Soviet delegate, declared that the speech made earlier by Mr. John Foster Dulles, the United States Secretary of State, "clearly showed" that the United States was insisting on consideration of the proposals to promote revision of the Charter.

Mr. Malik accused the United States of concealing its clear political intentions.

The importance of the unanimity of the five permanent members of the Security Council—official parlance for the veto—was clear to everyone, Mr. Malik said.

It was "absolutely useless to revise the Charter, especially in the present climate."

He said the Soviet Union could not accept the arguments put forward on the point by Mr. Dulles.

By a similar vote of 51 to five, with one abstention, the Assembly also rejected protests by the Soviet Union and its allies against inclusion on the agenda of an item dealing with the alleged detention of hundreds of thousands of German, Italian and Japanese prisoners of war by the Soviet Union.

Mr. Malik contended that discussion of the issue was proposed only for "slandering ends."

He added that "everyone" knew that the repatriation of prisoners of war had been completed by the Soviet Union long ago.

The Assembly approved the remainder of the 72-item agenda without comment.

It also adopted without comment the proposal of the Secretary-General, Mr. Dag Hammarskjöld, that the closing date of the present session should be December 8.—Reuter.

Govt Gazette Announcements

The Government Gazette announced today that Mr. G. D. Bristand has ceased to be an Assistant Director of Commerce and Industry with effect from September 10.

It was also announced that the following have been appointed Justices of the Peace for the Colony: Messrs L. M. G. D. N. E. Rea, D. H. Taylor, J. Pakenham-Walsh.

It was notified that H.E. the Governor has recognized Mr. Milton W. Meyer and Mr. John H. Holdridge as Vice-Consuls for the United States of America in the Colony, provisionally and pending instructions from the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Another announcement stated that H.E. the Governor has recognized Dr. Herbert Corliss as Consul, and Dr. Herbert Engelmann as Vice-Consul, for the Federal Republic of Germany at Hongkong.

Liability Of Owners And Landlords

In exercise of the powers conferred on him by section 29 of the Waterworks Ordinance, the Governor in Council has made the following regulations published in the Government Gazette today:

Where the owner or landlord of any premises pays for the metered water supply he shall be deemed to be the consumer liable to payment of any money due in respect of consumption.

The landlord, notwithstanding any notice which he may have given to the Water Authorities or to his tenant, shall be liable to payment of any money due in respect of consumption.

These regulations were formerly under the Emergency Regulations GN 922 of 1938, which were repealed when regulation 138 of the Emergency (Principal) Regulations were passed in 1949.

However, as it is considered desirable that the regulations should continue in force as they have and not in any manner a temporary or emergency character, it is proper that they should be reenacted as ordinary regulations.

3 Years For Store Dealer

Chau Fal, 21-year-old marine store dealer, of 80, Fanning New Village, was sentenced to three years or $2,000 by Mr. T. Creedon at Kowloon this morning for possession of arms and ammunition.

Det. Sub-Insps. W.S. Paton, prosecuting, said that the police raided the defendant's premises on September 14. They found a large quantity of gear, including frame mounts of mortar, empty cartridges, bullet heads, mortar bomb fins, three shot cases and one No. 9 ammunition primer.

DSI Paton asked the court to take a serious view of this case, as, recently, hawkers had been digging up fired ammunition on the New Territory firing range.

18 Months For Possessing Dagger

For being in possession of a dagger without a licence, Chan Ming-fat, who is now serving a sentence of six months for breach of a life deportation order, was sentenced to 18 months by Mr. Justice A. D. Scholes, Acting Puisne Judge, at the Criminal Session, this morning.

Mr. Simon Li, Crown Counsel, said that at 6.15 p.m. on June 20, the accused went to No. 6 Aplu Street, first floor, with the intent of doing some harm to a woman in the house. He failed to enter the house due to the resistance of the principal tenant, who raised the alarm.

Accused then ran downstairs but was intercepted by a man and was arrested. The dagger was found in his possession.

The accused was first charged with intent to rob and during committal proceedings accused gave evidence that he had been told by another man to assault a woman in the premises and was given the dagger in case he could not overcome the woman.

PREVIOUS OFFENCES
The accused had several previous convictions, Mr. Simon Li said. On December 13, 1950, he was fined $25 for selling food for man. In April, 1951, he was convicted of conspiracy to rob and possession of arms and was sentenced to 2½ years. He was also recommended for banishment. On December 23, 1952, he was convicted of breach of a deportation order and was sentenced to six months.

Since the incident at Aplu Street, he was charged again with and convicted of breach of a deportation order on August 21, for which he was sentenced to six months. At present he is serving the six months' sentence.

The Judge ordered that the sentence of 18 months be run consecutively with the six months' sentence accused was now serving.

Mr. Justice Scholes also ordered confiscation of the dagger.

Today's King Case Proceedings

ber is that there was considerable trouble with Arcus, so much so that I had to remove him from the shop. There was a joint account—how much I cannot remember—between Falconer's and Arcus for the manufacture of jewellery and the defendant refused, although he later became a partner of Arcus, to have anything to do with the matter and I personally had to see Arcus and obtain a settlement for Falconer's. The amount I cannot remember.

At this point, Mr. Silva asked the Magistrate to make a note that the defendant did not admit being a partner of Arcus, although he (Counsel) did not intend to put that to the witness.

Continuing his cross-examination, Mr. Silva asked: If my suggestion is correct, you will then have shown that Ipekjdian would have billed Falconer's for Arcus' watch, plus 40 per cent?

Here, Mr. Clifford said he must have misunderstood Mr. Silva in regard to the figures he had given earlier.

Mr. Silva asked Mr. Clifford not to interrupt, saying that he and Mr. Seymour knew what they were talking about, and Mr. Clifford evidently did not know his mathematics.

EXPLANATION

Mr. Seymour: May I explain. If you have a Hongkong figure of $9,100 and you want to make it into the equivalent of US$1,260 you divide the Hongkong figure by the US dollar figure and that gives you the rate, which Mr. Silva says is $9.43.

Mr. Silva: If your suggestion is true, then your explanation is that this consignment to Falconer's with the 40 per cent was your indication to Falconer's of Falconer's selling price is untrue, and that is why I suggest that you should please bring up the relevant cards, vouchers or bills relating to the items to prove that my suggestion is completely untrue and you are telling the truth, and you say I am trying to force something on you. Are you ready to produce the relevant documents to prove my suggestion is a lie and you are telling the truth? Are you prepared to do so?

Mr. Clifford interjected to say that Mr. Silva was asking a dozen questions in one.

Mr. Silva again asked Mr. Clifford not to interrupt and repeated his question.

NO ALTERNATIVE

Mr. Seymour: It would appear that I have no alternative and I will have to produce these documents.

Mr. Silva: Will you at the same time took up your payments with Arcus?

Mr. Seymour: A peculiarity of this case is that Mr. King has had or at any rate seen the document Exhibit SSSS in April or thereabouts, 1950, with the remarks on, and having signed the balance sheet on March 14, 1951, as a Director and on March 16, 1951, had come to the Company meeting and approved the balance sheet as a shareholder should now, in 1953, when he is subject to a Police Prosecution, try to throw dirt at me. Furthermore, on February 15 and 17, 1951, Mr. King, at the Directors' meetings on those two days—the minutes of which are in this Court—then told Ipekjdian that he was satisfied and that Ipekjdian's were not taking the cream of the business.

Mr. Silva: And this harangue of yours is founded on your assertion that Exhibit SSSS was in his (King's) possession since 1950?—I say that the jewellery was sent to Falconer's with SSSS and what Mr. King did with it I had no means of knowing, but on the other side there is more to what Mr. Silva has so aptly called my "trade than just the Arcus question, because the Bulova matter was also in the period 1949-50, and was shown to Mr. King. The balance sheet was signed by Mr. King. He came to the Company's annual general meeting and made no dissent when the accounts were placed before him.

WITNESS APOLOGISES

Before Mr. Silva went on to ask his next question, he told Mr. Seymour that while they had differences of opinion, he did not think it necessary for Mr. Seymour to raise his voice in making a reply.

Mr. Seymour apologized and remarked that he had been under cross-examination for a long time and the strain of it was affecting him, and if he raised his voice a bit during his answers that was the reason for it.

Continuing, Mr. Silva asked: I will put it to you that this document did not come into Mr. King's possession until some time this year. Do you agree?

Witness: I do not agree because as I have said it was sent down with the jewellery. I will put it to you further that the jewellery was not sent down with SSSS but a consignment note which was entered into the consignment stock card by Miss Singlan. The jewellery was sent down with SSSS by me. I further say that if it happened today it would most certainly go down in the consignment book but I cannot say with any certainty that the consignment book was in operation in 1950.

The hearing is proceeding.

Radio Tribute To The Late Len Starbuck

An appreciation of the late Mr. Leonard Starbuck is to be broadcast tonight at 8.30 by the Rev. Father T. F. Ryan, SJ.

In announcing this today, an official statement by the station observes that "the news of the death of Len Starbuck came as a great shock to all in Radio Hongkong where, for many years, he was looked affectionately upon as one of the family."

The announcement adds that the friendship between Father Ryan, who will broadcast the tribute, and Len dated back to before the war.

European's Motoring Offence

A European, Mr. W. D. Pringles was this morning fined $150 by Mr. Thomas Chan in Court for driving without due care and attention and also ordered to pay $100 damages to the father of a little 9-year-old Chinese girl whom he had hit and injured on July 18 at King's Road.

Pringles, according to his evidence, when questioned by SI Boxall, prosecuting, was going along King's Road towards Hongkong at about 30 miles an hour when he saw a group of people standing waiting for a tram. He had continued at about the same speed, meaning to pass between them and the pavement.

Suddenly a little girl rushed out in front of his car. He applied his brakes, but could not avoid hitting her. The little girl, Mak Siu-ling, appeared in Court, and said that she had been cut around the cheeks and forehead and bruised on her legs. The injuries had now healed.

Asked why he had not slowed down to avoid the group of people, Pringles, who has only been driving in the Colony since July, said that it seemed quite safe to him.

"You realise now," asked SI Boxall, "that people here are apt to do peculiar things in the road without warning or reason?"

"Yes," said Pringles, "I realise now that people are apt to do peculiar things here on the roads."

Pringles produced his English licence in Court. It had been taken out in 1929 and was clean.

Casting Meeting Postponed

The Hongkong Stage Club casting meeting which was to have been held at Radio Hongkong tonight has been cancelled owing to the bad weather. The new date will be announced later.
